"BLUE BIRD" AT NEW THEATRE

Macterlinek's Play of Children to Open The New Theatre, at Sixty-second street and Central Park West, will open its second season Monday evening, September 26, with "The Blue Bird," a play by Maurice Maeterlinck which has already won success produced at the Haymarket Theatra, London, shortly before last Christmas and ran there the entire season. In

In brief, the tale deals with the adveg-tures of Tytyl and Mytyl, the children of a woodchopper, who at the request of Fairy Beryline set out to capture the bluebird, the ancient symbol of happiness. With it once in their possession they achieve joy for themselves and their fellows. In the folklore of Lorraine the bluebird stands for happiness, and it bluebird stands for happiness, and it was upon the old fable that the poet drew for his material. The play gives exceptional opportunity for unusual effects. These will be poetic rather than spectacular and will introduce much that is new in stagecraft. Music will run through the play and there will be half a dozen or more dances. Some idea of the poetry of the drama may be had from the fact that the characters include dews, perfumes, stars of the night, will-o's the-wisps, the hours of the day and glow-

The cast will include about fifty children and will be the largest ever assembled at the New Theatre. Miss Marguerite Clark, now starring under the Shuberts' management will play the rôle of the woodchopper's young son. Tytyl. The other members will be announced shortly.
